IDENTITY AND INTERESTS OF *AMICI CURIAE*¹

Amicus curiae the New Orleans Martinet Legal Foundation, Inc. is the charitable arm of The Greater New Orleans Chapter of the Louis A. Martinet Legal Society (“Chapter”), a volunteer bar association whose members are Black lawyers and judges in the New Orleans area. Founded in 1957, the Louis A. Martinet Legal Society (“Martinet Society”) was named for Louis André Martinet, a Black pioneer in the legal profession who was a key strategist for orchestrating Homer Adolph Plessy’s arrest, ultimately resulting in the landmark test case of Plessy v. Ferguson, 163 U.S. 537 (1896). The Martinet Society was formed as a direct response to racial injustices and inequalities in the Jim Crow era. The Martinet Society’s founders were Black lawyers and judges who faced significant adversity and racial discrimination both in and out of their professional fields, including redlining, voter disenfranchisement, and attacks on Black members of the bar.

In the decades since its founding, the Martinet Society has advocated for a diverse legal profession, including by encouraging interchange of ideas, promoting legal scholarship, advancing the science of jurisprudence, promoting the administration of justice, upholding the order and ethics of the courts and the profession of law, and promoting the welfare of the legal profession in Louisiana consistent with the vision of the Martinet Society's founders.

As the Black bar association in the New Orleans area, the Chapter and its members are impacted by the Chisom v. Roemer Consent Decree ("Chisom Decree") not only as voters seeking fair representation on the State's highest court, but also as prospective justices on the court. Indeed, all three Black justices who have served on the Louisiana Supreme Court since the Chisom Decree have been instrumental in the development of Black lawyers in Louisiana through their involvement with the Martinet Society. Justice Revius Ortique Jr. was a Martinet Society founder, and Justices Johnson and Griffin are active members of the Chapter today. The Chapter urges this Court to decline the State's invitation to dissolve the Chisom Decree, as dissolution may undermine the political participation of Black voters in Orleans Parish in their ability to elect a candidate of choice in the election of the State's highest court. As discussed further below, this political participation has been instrumental in supporting and elevating Black lawyers and judges and improving Black representation in the legal profession.

Amici Louisiana State University Black Law Students Association, Loyola University New Orleans College of Law Black Law Students Association, Southern University Law Center Black Law Students Association, and Tulane Law School Black Law Students Association (collectively, the “BLSA Amici”) promote the needs and goals of Black law students at their respective law schools. BLSA Amici actively work to recruit and maintain the enrollment of Black law students and connect members to academic, professional, and social activities in the legal community. BLSA Amici have an interest in this case because they are dedicated to enhancing and supporting the professional aspirations of their members (many of whom are voters in Orleans Parish) and to ensuring a justice system that reflects the diversity of the communities that they serve.

Amicus Curiae Southern University Law Center Louis A. Berry Civil Rights and Justice Institute (“Civil Rights Institute”) is dedicated to the advancement of civil and human rights with a focus on Louisiana and the South. The Civil Rights Institute uses research, advocacy, and education to promote equal rights and justice. The Civil Rights Institute has an interest in this case given the implications for the voting rights of Black voters in Louisiana.

SUMMARY OF ARGUMENT

The en banc Court should affirm the Panel opinion, which correctly affirmed the District Court’s conclusion that the State has failed to meet its burden to terminate the Chisom Decree. In particular, the Panel correctly concluded that the Decree includes a prospective remedy—compliance with Section 2 of the Voting Rights Act in an Orleans Parish-based district. The State’s request to the en banc Court to terminate the Chisom Decree is particularly troubling because of the grave stakes that are present here. As with other state courts, the Louisiana Supreme Court resolves matters that affect the everyday lives of Black Louisianans, including those in Orleans Parish. The three Black justices elected to the Louisiana Supreme Court since the Chisom Decree—Justices Ortique, Johnson, and Griffin—each have exemplified the importance of having judges on the bench that share the experiences of the electorate. Justices Ortique, Johnson, and Griffin demonstrate the importance of the Chisom Decree and why the Court must reject the State's request to dissolve it.

Like consent decrees issued in other federal civil rights litigation around the country, the Chisom Decree is a joint agreement between the parties. As exemplified by the election and service of Justices Ortique, Johnson, and Griffin, the Chisom Decree in particular remains critical for protecting the voting rights of Black voters in Orleans Parish. Since its entry in 1992, the Chisom Decree has required Louisiana Supreme Court elections to take place in an Orleans Parish-based district.

While the Chisom Decree is not perpetual, it was the State's burden under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 60\(b\)\(5\) to show compliance with all provisions of the Decree before the District Court could terminate it. The State failed to meet this burden, as both the District Court and Panel correctly concluded. Indeed, the State did not offer a single piece of evidence demonstrating that Louisiana Supreme Court elections will continue to take place without vote dilution for Black voters in Orleans Parish absent the Chisom Decree. Far more is required for the State to meet its burden under Rule 60 and the Decree itself, and the Court should affirm the Panel's finding that the State failed to show compliance with the Chisom Decree's prospective remedy.

ARGUMENT

I. Dissolving the Chisom Decree Risks Eroding Fairness and Confidence in the Justice System and Obstructing a Pathway for Black Justices to Contribute Sorely Needed Perspectives

In the United States, state courts hear 95 percent of all cases filed.² As these cases work their way through state court systems, eventually state Supreme Courts typically provide the binding interpretation of state law concerning many key areas of life including employment, housing, education, and criminal justice. These are the same areas of life in which the Martinet Society's founders faced significant racial discrimination during the Jim Crow era. And decades later, Black Louisianans (including other Amici), still bear the effects of discrimination in these areas of life.³

As Black people are “disproportionately involved with the judicial system,”⁴ state court judges have a “direct and irrevocable impact” in the lives of Black people.⁵ Yet Black voters are “much less likely than White or Hispanic voters to believe the courts are fair and impartial, [or] providing equal justice to all.”⁶ According to the National Center for State Courts’ 2023 State of the State Courts Survey, “50% of Black voters ‘disagree that state courts are unbiased in their case decisions,’” and “Black voters are also considerably less likely to say the courts are protecting rights and treating people with dignity and respect than White or Hispanic voters.”⁷ These troubling statistics likely reflect Black voters both experiencing racial discrimination in many areas of life and having to engage with a judicial system where there are so few (if any) judges who themselves may have been exposed to similar experiences with racial discrimination.

Research shows that a judiciary that reflects the diversity of the communities who are involved in the judicial system “enriches judicial decision-making, promotes public confidence in the judiciary, and establishes role models across demographic groups.”⁸ This research is profoundly exemplified by the journeys of Louisiana Supreme Court Justices Ortique, Johnson, and Griffin.

Justice Revius O. Ortique, Jr

Justice Revius O. Ortique, Jr. was the first Black justice to serve on the Louisiana Supreme Court; he served from 1992 to 1994. Prior to serving on the state’s highest court, Justice Ortique was appointed by the Louisiana Supreme Court to the Orleans Parish Civil District Court in 1978. The following year, he was the first Black person elected to the Orleans Parish Civil District Court and he later became the first Black chief judge of that court in 1984.⁹

A veteran of World War II, Justice Ortique graduated from law school in 1956 and one year later, he, along with sixteen other Black attorneys, founded the Martinet Society.¹⁰ He started his own legal practice, which eventually became one of the largest estate practices in Louisiana.¹¹ He also served as co-counsel in several landmark civil rights cases.¹²

Justice Ortique was a leader in the profession and in his community on the national, state, and local levels. He served multiple terms as President of the Urban League of Greater New Orleans and as President of the National Bar Association.¹³ Justice Ortique also served as President of the National Legal Aid and Defender Association,¹⁴ and the Martinet Society credits his work with the Louisiana State Bar Association's Legal Aid Committee as having provided a model for pro bono legal work.¹⁵

Justice Ortique paved the way for many Black attorneys.¹⁶ In the words of former–Attorney General Eric Holder: “[W]hen he became the first African American to serve on the Louisiana Supreme Court, Justice Ortique set an example, and opened the door of opportunity, for the generations of lawyers who followed him. Lawyers like me.”¹⁷ Assistant Attorney General Kristen Clarke attributed the Department of Justice and Civil Rights Division’s privilege of “addressing the most pressing civil rights issues of our time” to carrying on the legacy of Justice Ortique and other leaders.¹⁸

During his term on the Louisiana Supreme Court, Justice Ortique was a “strong voice for fundamental fairness and equal protection of the law.”¹⁹ Notably, his voice for fundamental fairness existed long before he joined the judiciary. For example, this voice was clear in his prior work negotiating “with the Louisiana power structure” to desegregate various public facilities.²⁰ He then brought his voice for fundamental fairness to the full range of cases over which the state’s highest court has jurisdiction—cases impacting areas of life that concern all Louisianians.²¹ There is no doubt that as the first Black justice on the Louisiana Supreme Court, and the sole Black justice during his tenure, Justice Ortique was able to “introduce traditionally excluded perspectives and values into judicial decisionmaking,”²² thereby advancing an equitable justice system.

Justice Bernette J. Johnson

Justice Bernette J. Johnson was the first Black woman to serve on the Louisiana Supreme Court; she served from 1994 to 2020. After becoming one of the first Black women to graduate from the Paul M. Hebert Law Center at Louisiana State University, Justice Johnson served as the Managing Attorney of the New Orleans Legal Assistance Corporation, an organization that provided legal aid to low-income individuals.²³ Justice Johnson was the first woman to serve on the Civil District Court of New Orleans.²⁴ She worked on various initiatives concerning fairness and equity including the National Campaign on Best Practices in the area of Racial and Ethnic Fairness in the Courts and the training and certification of Limited English Proficiency Interpreters in the courts.²⁵

In 2013, Justice Johnson received the prestigious Joan Dempsey Klein Award from the National Association of Women Judges (NAWJ).²⁶ This award is presented annually to a judge “who has assisted women judges to become more proficient in their profession, helped to solve the legal, social and ethical problems associated with the judiciary, and worked to increase the number of women serving as judges.”²⁷ This is just one award of many honoring Justice Johnson’s leadership in Louisiana and in the legal profession.²⁸ As a tribute to her lifelong

Much like Justice Ortique, Justice Johnson—as the sole Black justice during her tenure—promoted judicial decisionmaking that included voices from communities that have vastly different lived experiences than her colleagues on the Louisiana Supreme Court. See Br. of Intervenor Plaintiff-Appellee Bernette J. Johnson 40–43 (exploring Justice Johnson’s dissents in which she vigorously opined on racially discriminatory conduct against Black people in several contexts, including sentencing and jury selection). Justice Johnson’s commitment to ensuring that the experiences of the underrepresented are properly reflected in the judicial decisionmaking process was perhaps most powerfully demonstrated during her last year on the bench at the height of the COVID-19 pandemic. She authored a letter to her colleagues on the bench in the aftermath of the death of George Floyd. She wrote:

“[T]he protests are the consequence of centuries of institutionalized racism that has plagued our legal system. Statistics show that the Louisiana criminal legal system disproportionately affects African Americans, who comprise 32% of our population in Louisiana, but 70% of our prison population. African American children in Louisiana are imprisoned at almost seven times the rate of White children. Our prison population did not increase fivefold from 7,200 in 1978, to 40,000 in 2012 without decisive action over many years by the legislature and by prosecutors, juries and judges around the state. We are part of the problem they protest . . . Is it any wonder why many people have little faith that our legal system is designed to serve them or protect them from harm? . . . Is it any wonder why they have taken to the streets to demand that it does?"³⁰

Justice Piper D. Griffin

Justice Piper D. Griffin began her service on the Louisiana Supreme Court on January 1, 2021 and currently serves in that role.³¹ She attended the University of Notre Dame, which honored her as one of the 50 most distinguished Black graduates of the university, and Louisiana State University, Paul M. Hebert Law School.³² A lifelong resident of New Orleans, Justice Griffin has spent her legal career serving the New Orleans community. Justice Griffin was elected to Justice Griffin's career demonstrates an unfailing commitment to public service. Before becoming a justice, she volunteered with the Juvenile Courts and with Lawyers in the Classroom.³⁴ She is a member of the Louisiana State Law Institute Council and is active in various professional and civic associations, including the Louisiana Judicial Council Foundation/National Bar Association and the Louisiana Association of District Court Judges.³⁵ And just as her predecessors on the Court, she is an active member of the Greater New Orleans Martinet Society, including having served as Treasurer and Corresponding Secretary.

Since joining the Supreme Court bench, Justice Griffin continues to dedicate time to continuing legal education, frequently speaking for both national and local programs including the Louisiana State Bar Association, the New Orleans Bar Association, and the Louisiana

In recognition of her contributions to the legal profession and society at large, Justice Griffin has received numerous awards and accolades. The Martinet Society presented Justice Griffin with its 2003 Judicial Pacesetter Award and its 2018 Lifetime Achievement Award, demonstrating her longstanding influence.³⁹ She has also received, among others, the American Board of Trial Advocates Thomas Jefferson Justice By the People Award, the National Bar Association Judicial Council’s Sarah J. Louisiana Supreme Court has for Black communities. In a Constitution Day address to students at Grambling State University, an Historically Black University, Justice Griffin stated “I work in a place where we’re not present, though our voice I hope can be heard.”⁴¹ And Justice Griffin was the lone dissenter in the Court’s decision to decline to retroactively apply the U.S. Supreme Court ruling in Ramos v. Louisiana, 140 S. Ct. 1390 (2020), which found non-unanimous convictions racially discriminatory and unconstitutional. In her dissent, Justice Griffin powerfully opined that “[i]ntentional racism has no place in our criminal justice system[.]” State v. Reddick, 351 So. 3d 273, 296 (La. 2022) (Griffin, J., dissenting). She further opined:

The racially discriminatory nature of convictions secured by non-unanimous verdicts does not change over time. Such convictions were racially discriminatory in 1898. They were racially discriminatory in 1975. They remain racially discriminatory today. . . . We must not perpetuate something we all know to be wrong only because we fear the consequences – and costs – of being right.

Id. at 297. Justice Griffin’s service on the Louisiana Supreme Court is yet another example of how fair representation can move us towards a system that preserves the rights of all individuals. And absent the Chisom Decree, her service—and that of all three Black justices on the Louisiana Supreme Court to date—likely would not have been possible.

The election and service of Justices Ortique, Johnson, and Griffin demonstrate what is at stake here. The Court must hold the State to its Rule 60 burden to show compliance with all of the Chisom Decree’s remedies, including its prospective remedy. Filing a new Section 2 claim against the State (if necessary) is not a viable option for Plaintiffs because litigating a new Section 2 case will take years—risking needless and irreparable re-infringement of the voting rights of Black voters in Orleans Parish.

II. The Chisom Decree Was and Still Is Necessary to Remedy the Lack of Fair Representation on the Louisiana Supreme Court in Violation of the Federal Civil Rights of Black Voters in Orleans Parish.

Consent decrees have been and continue to be a critical tool for protecting the civil rights of racial minority populations, including Black voters in Louisiana. See, e.g., Consent Decree, United States v. City of West Monroe, La, No. 3:21-cv-00988 (W.D. La. Apr. 14, 2021), ECF 4; 4-1 (ending the at-large voting system in the City of West Monroe, Louisiana that violated Section 2 of the Voting Rights Act).

Black voters in Louisiana are all too familiar with violations of their civil rights; indeed, the State of Louisiana has a thoroughly documented and judicially recognized history of official racial discrimination against Black voters. See, e.g., Nairne v. Ardoin, No. 22-cv-178-SDD-SDJ, 2024 WL 492688, at *37 (M.D. La. Feb. 8, 2024) (“For over 40 years, Louisiana’s courts have recognized the state’s history of official discrimination.”); Robinson v. Ardoin, 605 F. Supp. 3d 759, 846–48 (M.D. La. 2022), vacated and remanded on other grounds, 86 F.4th 574 (5th Cir. 2023) (“The evidence of Louisiana’s long and ongoing history of voting-related discrimination weighs heavily in favor of Plaintiffs.”); Terrebonne Par. Branch NAACP v. Jindal, 274 F. Supp. 3d 395, 439 (M.D. La. 2017), rev’d sub nom, Fusilier v. Landry, 963 F.3d 447 (5th Cir. 2020) (“Louisiana and its subdivisions have a long history of using certain electoral systems that have the effect of diluting the black vote.”); Parnell v. Rapides Par. Sch. Bd., 425 F. Supp. 399, 404 (W.D. La. 1976), aff’d in part, modified in part, 563 F.2d 180 (5th Cir. 1977) (finding “a continuing history of state and local official racial discrimination in Rapides Parish which, prior to 1954 has extended to deprivation of the rights of blacks to register and vote and to participate in a democratic process”). This discrimination has undermined the ability of Louisiana’s Black voters to participate equally in the political process.

As Plaintiffs and the State recognized over thirty years ago when the parties first entered into the Chisom Decree, Louisiana’s voting systems systemically disenfranchised Black voters in Orleans Parish and thus institutional reform was required to protect their voting rights.⁴² Before the Chisom Decree, Black voters in the Orleans Parish area had “less opportunity than other members of the electorate to participate in the political process and elect [Supreme Court justices] of their choice.” Chisom v. Roemer, 501 U.S. 380, 388 (1991) (internal citation omitted). While five of the seven Louisiana Supreme Court justices were each elected from single-member districts, a multi-parish, multi-member district in the New Orleans area elected two justices. See id. at 384. Accordingly, no Louisiana Supreme Court justice had ever been elected by a majority-Black district because of the dilution of Black voters' voting strength via a multi-member district—a textbook violation of Section 2 of the Voting Rights Act of 1965.⁴³ In contrast, since the Chisom Decree has been in place, there have been three Black justices that have joined the Louisiana Supreme Court bench. Prior to the Chisom Decree, there was not a single Black justice elected to the Louisiana Supreme Court. The Chisom Decree was a necessity in 1991 and continuing threats to fair representation in violation of federal law make a durable remedy under the Chisom Decree a continued necessity today. Indeed, courts have recently recognized that voting systems in Louisiana continue to violate the voting rights of Black voters. See, e.g., Robinson, 605 F. Supp. 3d at

830 (noting that plaintiffs' expert's opinions that "voting in recent elections in Louisiana is starkly racially polarized" was undisputed).

Both the Panel Dissent and the State contend that the Decree may be dissolved because Plaintiffs have the prospective remedy of filing a new lawsuit under Section 2 of the VRA. See Panel Op. at 52, ECF 95-1 ("[T]he VRA itself is enduring, and as strong a prospective relief possible if [the State] violates the law in the future"); State's En Banc Supp. Brief 41 ("[A]ny purported violation could be rapidly challenged under Section 2."). This position ignores the reality of Section 2 litigation. Plaintiffs who litigate Section 2 claims in federal courts are likely to continue enduring the alleged impediments to their voting rights while their Section 2 claims are pending. Moreover, litigating Section 2 claims involves a massive expense of resources and time, and plaintiffs may not be able to obtain any relief for years.⁴⁴

For example, in 2013, several plaintiffs brought Section 2 challenges to Texas's Senate Bill 14 ("SB14"), a voter ID law enacted by the Texas legislature in 2011. See, e.g., United States v. Texas, No. 2:13-cv-00263 (S.D. Tex. Aug. 22, 2013), ECF 1; Ortiz v. Texas, No. 2:13-cv-00348 (S.D. Tex. Nov. 5, 2013), ECF 1. After the cases were consolidated, the district court ruled in favor of the plaintiffs on their Section 2 claims. See Veasey v. Perry, 71 F. Supp. 3d 627 (S.D. Tex. 2014). But the plaintiffs did not get an actual remedy from the court until 2016 (i.e., three years later), following this Court's instructions on remand.⁴⁵ See Veasey v. Perry, No. 2:13-cv-00193, ECF 895 (S.D. Tex. Aug. 10, 2016) (memorializing the parties' agreed upon remedies prior to the November 8, 2016 general election).

The Section 2 litigation involving Texas' SB14 demonstrates why bringing a new Section 2 claim is a patently insufficient outlet for the Chisom Plaintiffs. Were the Chisom Decree dissolved and were Louisiana then to violate the voting rights of the Black voters in Orleans Parish, those voters would likely have to wait years for litigation to play out, during which time their constitutional and statutory rights would continue to be violated. This is exactly what the Chisom Decree and Rule 60's burden of proof are meant to guard against. The remedy for the dilution of Black New Orleans voting strength in Supreme Court elections—the Chisom Decree—must remain in effect until the State can show that Louisiana Supreme Court elections will be non-dilutive for Black voters in Orleans Parish and in compliance with Section 2 of the VRA.

CONCLUSION

The en banc Court should affirm the Panel's opinion.
