

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF OHIO

LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS	:
OF OHIO, et al. ,	:
	:
Relators,	:	Case No. 2021-1193
	:
v.	:
	:
OHIO REDISTRICTING	:
COMMISSION, et al. ,	:
	:
Respondents.	:

BRIEF AMICUS CURIAE OF THE CITY OF CINCINNATI
IN SUPPORT OF RELATORS

(counsel listing on next page)

Freda J. Levenson (0045916)
ALU of Ohio Foundation, Inc.
4506 Chester Avenue
Cleveland, Ohio 44103
Tel: 614-586-1972 x 125
flevenson@acluohio.org

David J. Carey (0088787)
ACLU of Ohio Foundation, Inc.
1108 City Park Avenue, Suite 203
Columbus, OH 43206
(614) 586-1972 x2004
dcarey@acluohio.org

Alora Thomas (PHV 22010-2021)
Kelsey Miller*
Julie A. Ebenstein (PHV
25423-2021)
American Civil Liberties Union 125
Broad Street
New York, NY 10004
(212) 519-7866
athomas@aclu.org
jebenstein@aclu.org

Robert D. Fram (PHV 25414-2021)
Donald Brown (PHV 25480-2021)
Joshua González (PHV 25424-2021)
Juliana Goldrosen (PHV 25193-2021)
David Denuyl (PHV 25452-2021)
COVINGTON & BURLING LLP
Salesforce Tower
415 Mission Street
San Francisco, CA 94105-2533 (415)
591 6000
rfram@cov.com

ANDREW W. GARTH (0088905)
City Solicitor
Emily Smart Woerner (0089349)
Deputy City Solicitor
Shannon Price (0100744)
Assistant City Solicitor
801 Plum Street, Room 214
Cincinnati, Ohio 45202
Phone: (513) 352-3307
Fax: (513) 352-1515
emily.woerner@cincinnati-oh.gov
shannon.price@cincinnati-oh.gov

Counsel for Amicus Curiae City of Cincinnati

DAVE YOST
OHIO ATTORNEY GENERAL
Michael J. Hendershot (0081842)
Michael A. Walton (0092201)
Bridget C. Coontz (0072919)
Julie M. Pfeiffer (0069762)
30 E. Broad Street Columbus, OH 43215
Tel: (614) 466-2872
Fax: (614) 728-7592
Michael.Hendershot@OhioAttorneyGeneral.gov
Michael.Walton@OhioAGO.gov
bridget.coontz@ohioago.gov
julie.pfeiffer@ohioago.gov

*Counsel for Respondents
Governor Mike DeWine, Secretary of State
Frank LaRose, and Auditor Keith Faber*

W. Stuart Dornette (0002955)
Beth A. Bryan (0082076)
Philip D. Williamson (0097174)
TAFT STETTINIUS & HOLLISTER LLP
425 Walnut St., Suite 1800
Cincinnati, Ohio 45202-3957
T: (513) 381-2838
dornette@taftlaw.com
bryan@taftlaw.com
pwilliamson@taftlaw.com

Anupam Sharma (PHV 25418-2021)
James Hovard (PHV 25420-2021)
Yale Fu (PHV 25419-2021)
COVINGTON & BURLING LLP
3000 El Camino Real
5 Palo Alto Square, 10th Floor
Palo Alto, CA 94306-2112
(650) 632-4700
asharma@cov.com

Madison Arent*
COVINGTON & BURLING LLP
The New York Times Building
620 Eighth Avenue
New York, NY 10018-1405
(212) 841 1000
marent@cov.com

*Counsel for Relators
League of Women Voters et al.
*Pro Hac Vice Motion Forthcoming
Pro Hac Vice Motion Pending*

Phillip J. Strach (PHV 25444-2021)
Thomas A. Farr (PHV 25461-2021)
John E. Branch, III (PHV 25460-2021)
Alyssa M. Riggins (PHV 25441-2021)
NELSON MULLINS RILEY & SCARBOROUGH
LLP
4140 Parklake Ave., Suite 200
Raleigh, North Carolina 27612
phil.strach@nelsonmullins.com
tom.farr@nelsonmullins.com
john.branch@nelsonmullins.com
alyssa.riggins@nelsonmullins.com
T: (919) 329-3812

*Counsel for Respondents
Senate President Matt Huffman and
House Speaker Robert Cupp*

John Gilligan (Ohio Bar No. 0024542)
Diane Menashe (Ohio Bar No. 0070305)
ICE MILLER LLP
250 West Street, Suite 700
Columbus, Ohio 43215
John.Gilligan@icemiller.com
Diane.Menashe@icemiller.com

*Counsel for Respondents
Senator Vernon Sykes and
House Minority Leader Emilia Sykes*

Erik J. Clark (Ohio Bar No. 0078732)
Ashley Merino (Ohio Bar No. 0096853)
ORGAN LAW LLP
1330 Dublin Road
Columbus, Ohio 43215
T: (614) 481-0900
F: (614) 481-0904
ejclark@organlegal.com
amerino@organlegal.com

*Counsel for Respondent
Ohio Redistricting Commission*

TABLE OF CONTENTS

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES v

INTEREST OF AMICUS CURIAE CITY OF CINCINNATI..... 1

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND THE FACTS 2

ARGUMENT..... 3

 A. The Enacted Maps ‘pack’ and ‘crack’ Cincinnati residents into non-competitive districts, distorting the link between voters and their state lawmakers. 3

 B. Partisan gerrymandering undermines constitutional home rule and democratic norms throughout the state..... 6

 1. A gerrymandered legislature has every incentive to abuse its power of preemption. Experience shows that the Ohio General Assembly has done just that. 7

 2. Even when the legislative process is not abused, systemic preemption by a gerrymandered legislature results in the anti-democratic erosion of home rule. 9

CONCLUSION 11

CERTIFICATE OF SERVICE

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

Cases

City of Cincinnati v. State, 2018-Ohio-4498, 121 N.E.3d 892 (1st Dist.) 8

City of Cleveland v. State, 8th Dist. Cuyahoga No. 106688, 2019-Ohio-315 7, 8

City of Dayton v. State, 151 Ohio St.3d 168, 2017-Ohio-6909, 87 N.E.3d 176..... 11

Reynolds v. Sims, 377 U.S. 533, 84 S.Ct. 1362, 12 L.Ed.2d 506 (1964)..... 5

State ex rel. Morrison v. Beck Energy Corp., 143 Ohio St.3d 271, 2015-Ohio-485, 37 N.E.3d 128..... 6

Wilson v. Kasich, 134 Ohio St.3d 221, 2012-Ohio-5367, 981 N.E.2d 814 5

Statutes

Former R.C. 4511.093, 4511.0912, 4511.095. 9

R.C. 1509.02 9

R.C. 2923.1210 9

R.C. 3701.13 10

R.C. 3734.05 9

R.C. 3772.26 9

R.C. 4111.02 9

R.C. 4113.85 9

R.C. 4781.52 9

R.C. 4933.41 9

R.C. 9.68 9

R.C. Chapter 4939..... 9

Constitutional Provisions

Article XI, Section 6, Ohio Constitution 1, 2, 7, 10

Article XVIII, Section 3, Ohio Constitution..... 1, 6, 7, 11

Other Authorities

Bean & Strano, Punching Down: How States are Suppressing Local Democracy , https://d1y8sb8igg2f8e.cloudfront.net/documents/Punching_	8, 9
Brennan Center for Justice, Gerrymandering Explained , https://www.brennancenter.org/our-work/research-reports/gerrymandering-explained (accessed October 22, 2021).	2, 4
Caughey, Tausanovitch, and Warshaw, Partisan Gerrymandering and the Political Process: Effects on Roll-Call Voting and State Policies , Election Law Journal: Rules, Politics, and Policy 16, no. 4, 453-469, 461 (December 2017).	2, 8
Complaint, Bria Bennett, et. al., v. Ohio Redistricting Commission, et. al. , Case No. 2021-1198, 6
Complaint, League of Women Voters of Ohio, et. al., v. Ohio Redistricting Commission, et. al. , Case No. 2021-1193.	6
Complaint, Ohio Organizing Collaborative, et. al., v. Ohio Redistricting Commission, et. al. , Case No. 2021-1210.	5, 6
Evidence of Bennett Relators, Expert Affidavit of Dr. Jonathan Rodden, Bria Bennett, et. al., v. Ohio Redistricting Commission, et. al. , Case No. 2021-1198	4, 5
Exhibit 1, Affidavit of Michael S. Latner, ¶ 33, Ohio Organizing Collaborative, et. al. v. Ohio Redistricting Commission , Case No. 2021-1210.	4
Stephanopoulos, The Causes and Consequences of Gerrymandering , 59 Wm. & Mary L. Rev. 2115 (2018)	4, 5
Sub. S.B. No. 185, As Passed By Senate , https://search-prod.lis.state.oh.us/solarapi/v1/general_assembly_134/bills/sb185/PS/02/sb185_02_PS?format=pdf (accessed October 22, 2021)	10

INTEREST OF AMICUS CURIAE CITY OF CINCINNATI

The City of Cincinnati (“City”) is a charter municipal corporation empowered by the Ohio Constitution to “exercise all powers of local self-government.” Article XVIII, Section 3, Ohio Constitution. Cincinnati residents rely on the City to provide critical services and infrastructure, promote economic development, and maintain safe and healthy neighborhoods. Each of these functions requires decisive—and sometimes creative—exercise of the City’s constitutional home rule authority. All are directly impacted by the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic.

Unfortunately, Cincinnati is also home to several of the most aggressively gerrymandered districts in the state of Ohio. In each of these areas, Cincinnati residents find that their vote counts for less than it should—all because they live in a ‘packed’ or ‘cracked’ district designed to yield victory to a specific party. Article XI, Section 6 of the Ohio Constitution, makes a promise to all Ohioans: that whether or not their representative in the General Assembly shares their political views, the partisan composition of the Assembly as a whole will mirror statewide voter preferences. See Article XI, Section 6 (“The statewide proportion of districts whose voters * * * favor each political party shall correspond closely to the statewide preferences of the voters of Ohio.”) (emphasis added). When that promise is broken, all Ohioans suffer—but voters in gerrymandered districts suffer most. These voters, Cincinnati voters, are denied an equal voice in state politics.

The City faces an acute, dual harm from violations of Article XI, Section 6. Partisan gerrymandering not only disenfranchises our residents, but undermines the home rule authority granted by Article XVIII, Section 3. Deprived of the opportunity to participate equally in state elections, Cincinnati residents often turn to their local government for help—only to find that the City’s law-making ability is hamstrung through serial preemption by a non-representative state legislature. Enforcement of the bipartisan redistricting requirements in Article XI, Section 6 is critical to reassert balance between state and local governmental authority and to ensure that urban voters have an equal voice in our democracy. This amicus curiae brief in support of Relators thus urges the Court to declare the maps at issue in this case (the “Enacted Maps”) unconstitutional.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND THE FACTS

In the past two decades, the issue of partisan gerrymandering has stormed to the forefront of the American political stage. Gerrymandering is not a new feature of American politics, but the rise of big data and new technology now allows mapmakers to curate the outcome of future elections with unprecedented accuracy. See Brennan Center for Justice, Gerrymandering Explained, <https://www.brennancenter.org/our-work/research-reports/gerrymandering-explained> (accessed October 22, 2021). Even a single gerrymandered seat in a state legislature produces a quantifiable policy skew in favor of the advantaged party. See Caughey, Tausanovitch, and Warshaw, Partisan Gerrymandering and the Political Process: Effects on Roll-Call Voting and State Policies, Election Law Journal: Rules, Politics, and Policy 16, no. 4, 453-469, 461 (December 2017). Each additional, gerrymandered seat pushes the ideological composition of the legislature further away from the state median voter, with a direct impact on legislative policy that persists long after any one election. Id. at 461, 468.

Ohio voters have made their view of partisan gerrymandering abundantly clear. In 2015, a resounding 71 percent of voters passed “Issue 1,” mandating a bipartisan, public process for drawing legislative districts. The resulting constitutional amendment, Article XI, Section 6, requires that Ohio’s legislative districts be drawn so that “the statewide proportion of districts” whose voters “favor each political party [] correspond[s] closely to the statewide preferences of the voters of Ohio.” By requiring district maps to mirror statewide preferences, Article XI, Section 6 essentially sets a constitutional ceiling on partisanship. It makes a promise to every Ohioan that, whether or not their individual legislator aligns with their political views, the partisan composition of the General Assembly will not deviate too far from that of the state.

The gerrymandered maps adopted by the General Assembly and at issue here fall far short of the proportional fairness mandated by Article XI, Section 6. As drawn, these maps produce a gross deviation between the projected composition of the General Assembly—where Republicans would obtain 67 percent of seats in both houses—and the actual partisan preferences of Ohio voters (split 54 percent Republican and 46 percent Democrat over the last 10 years). Relator’s Complaint outlines at length the brazen political manipulation and faux statistical reasoning that produced these unconstitutional maps. To avoid redundancy, this amicus brief focuses on two different, intertwined consequences of partisan gerrymandering: the systemic underrepresentation of Ohio municipalities, and the resulting erosion of constitutional home rule via preemption.

ARGUMENT

Residents of the ‘packed’ and ‘cracked’ districts in Ohio’s urban areas suffer twin harms: disenfranchisement at the state level compounded by anti-democratic preemption of local lawmaking power. This Court should honor the intentions of the more than two million Ohio voters who passed Article XI, Section 6, and declare the Enacted Maps unconstitutional.

A. The Enacted Maps ‘pack’ and ‘crack’ Cincinnati residents into non-competitive districts, distorting the link between voters and their state lawmakers.

In Cincinnati—and across the state and nation—partisan gerrymandering operates through the practice of ‘packing’ and ‘cracking’ districts to make a map more favorable to the advantaged party. ‘Packed’ districts are packed full of voters from the disadvantaged party—far more than the disadvantaged party needs to win. This surplus of disadvantaged-party voters ensures that many disadvantaged-party votes are ‘wasted,’ i.e., expended on a race where they have no impact.

‘Cracked’ districts, in contrast, purposefully break up disadvantaged-party voting blocks into multiple different districts. By splitting up groups of voters (like specific neighborhoods or religious groups) who are likely to vote for the disadvantaged party, mapmakers ensure that these groups cannot muster enough votes to win any one district. See, e.g., Brennan Center for Justice, Gerrymandering Explained, <https://www.brennancenter.org/our-work/research-reports/gerrymandering-explained> (accessed October 22, 2021).

Highly-populated urban areas are particularly vulnerable to ‘packing’ and ‘cracking,’ and Cincinnati is no exception. See Stephanopoulos, The Causes and Consequences of Gerrymandering, 59 Wm. & Mary L. Rev. 2115, 2126 (2018); Evidence of Bennett Relators, Expert Affidavit of Dr. Jonathan Rodden, Case No. 2021-1198, ¶¶ 63-77 (describing how the Ohio Redistricting Commission exploited Ohio’s political geography to create gerrymandered districts in and around urban centers). It is thus no surprise that the enacted maps for Hamilton County and Montgomery County provide some of the worst examples of gerrymandering in the state. The enacted maps ‘pack’ Hamilton County House Districts 24 and 25 with likely Democratic voters, ensuring that adjacent Districts 27, 29, and 30 all lean safely Republican. See Exhibit 1 to the Complaint, Affidavit of Michael S. Latner, ¶ 33, Ohio Organizing Collaborative, et. al. vs. Ohio Redistricting Commission, Case No. 2021-1210. Montgomery County House District 38 is likewise ‘packed’ with Democrats, with the result that adjoining House districts 35 and 39 are safely Republican. Id.

A comparison between the enacted maps and the Citizens’ Redistricting Commission ‘Unity Map’ shows the stark consequences of gerrymandering for representation in and around Cincinnati. Under the neutral map, Republicans could expect to win one seat in Hamilton County and two in Montgomery County. But under the Enacted Maps, Republicans are projected to win three of seven seats in and around Hamilton County, and could win four of five in Montgomery County. Id. See also Evidence of Bennett Relators, Expert Affidavit of Dr. Jonathan Rodden, Bria Bennett, et. al, v. Ohio Redistricting Commission, et. al., Case No. 2021-1198, ¶¶ 75-80 (describing the Ohio Redistricting Commission’s manipulation of Cincinnati-area district boundaries to extract additional Republican seats).

Partisan gerrymandering is also deeply entwined with race. Data analysis shows that when mapmakers pack Black voters into a few, specific districts, they produce a quantifiable advantage for Republican candidates across the state. See Stephanopoulos at 2132, 2146-2147. This contemptible strategy is borne out in the Enacted Maps. ‘Packed’ Hamilton County House Districts 24 and 25 include 41 percent and 52 percent voting age Black residents, respectively, and are guaranteed to produce a surplus of ‘wasted’ Black votes. See Complaint, Ohio Organizing Collaborative, et. al., v. Ohio Redistricting Commission, Case No. 2021-1210, ¶ 69. Further analysis shows that where mapmakers could not ‘pack’ Black Cincinnati voters, they ‘cracked’ Black communities instead. Suburban Black communities outside of Cincinnati (and Dayton, for that matter) were split and scattered “across majority-Republican districts that were largely exurban and even rural.” Evidence of Bennett Relators, Expert Affidavit of Dr. Jonathan Rodden, Bria Bennett, et. al, v. Ohio Redistricting Commission, et. al., Case No. 2021-1198, ¶ 102. Whether or not mapmakers explicitly considered racial data when drawing the Enacted Maps, the result is the same: Black Cincinnatians are systemically disenfranchised by gerrymandered voting districts.

The democratic harm yielded by this design cannot be overstated. The “basic aim of legislative apportionment” is to achieve “fair and effective representation for all citizens.” Reynolds v. Sims, 377 U.S. 533, 565-566, 84 S.Ct. 1362, 12 L.Ed.2d 506 (1964). See Wilson v. Kasich, 134 Ohio St.3d 221, 2012-Ohio-5367, 981 N.E.2d 814, ¶ 62 (McGee Brown, J., dissenting). The Redistricting Commission’s blatant disregard for Article XI, Section 6, undercuts any sense of partisan fairness in Ohio state politics. And worse yet, the voters know it. All three Complaints filed against the Redistricting Commission articulate the sense of hopelessness and disenfranchisement felt by Democratic voters in Ohio, who know full well that the Enacted Maps are designed to keep their ideas and priorities off the legislative table. See Complaint, Ohio Organizing Collaborative, et. al., v. Ohio Redistricting Commission, et. al., Case No. 2021-1210, ¶¶ 11, 17, 23; Complaint, League of Women Voters of Ohio, et. al., v. Ohio Redistricting Commission, et. al., Case No. 2021-1193, ¶¶ 17, 24; Complaint, Bria Bennett, et. al., v. Ohio Redistricting Commission, et. al., Case No. 2021-1198, ¶¶ 103, 105, 107. The Enacted Maps pave a sure path to increasing partisan polarization and voter apathy—the very outcomes that Article XI, Section 6 is designed to combat.

B. Partisan gerrymandering undermines constitutional home rule and democratic norms throughout the state.

More than a century ago, the Ohio Constitutional Convention endowed Ohio municipalities with the power of home rule. See Ohio Constitution, Article XVIII, Section 3. Ohio municipalities, like Cincinnati, “have authority to exercise all powers of local self-government and to adopt and enforce within their limits such local police, sanitary and other similar regulations, as are not in conflict with the general laws.” Id. The Ohio Constitution allows for one exception to municipal home rule, namely, that “general laws” of the state of Ohio preempt conflicting exercises of local police power. See State ex rel. Morrison v. Beck Energy Corp., 143 Ohio St.3d 271, 2015-Ohio-485, 37 N.E.3d 128, ¶ 15. Through this clear—but limited—preemption authority, the General Assembly can ensure that municipal policy does not contravene statewide public policy.

Preemption is a perfectly legitimate feature of the democratic process—if the legislative body enacting the preemption is representative of statewide voter preferences. And in Ohio, the Redistricting Commission is constitutionally required to draw maps in which “the proportion of districts whose voters . . . favor each political party [] correspond[s] closely to the statewide preferences of the voters of Ohio.” Article XI, Section 6(B). The interplay between Article XVIII, Section 3 and Article XI, Section 6 should guarantee that when the Ohio General Assembly preempts municipal lawmaking authority, it does so for the right reason: to enact uniform laws reflective of statewide needs and policy preferences.

But when the Ohio Redistricting Commission flouts the requirements of Article XI, Section 6, this constitutional interplay breaks down. The Enacted Maps ensure that the partisan composition of the General Assembly will not reflect statewide voter preferences—and the General Assembly, in turn, will have the incentive and ability to preempt even the most modest municipal law-making efforts. Urban residents, already disenfranchised from equal participation in state lawmaking, often turn to their local government for answers. When they do, they encounter yet another harm of gerrymandering: the erosion of home rule via aggressive (and sometimes abusive) state preemption.

1. A gerrymandered legislature has every incentive to abuse its power of preemption. Experience shows that the Ohio General Assembly has done just that.

The infamous 2016 “Petland Bill” (S.B. 331) provides a powerful example of how a gerrymandered General Assembly is tempted to abuse its power of preemption. Such legislation undermines not only the home rule authority embodied in Article XVIII, Section 3, but the legitimacy of preemption itself.

S.B. 331 began its life as a bill to regulate the sale of dogs from pet stores. It was passed by the Ohio Senate, but languished for months in the House Financing Committee. See City of Cleveland v. State, 8th Dist. Cuyahoga No. 106688, 2019-Ohio-315, ¶ 2. On December 7, 2016—just days before the close of the 2016 legislative session—the Committee added a litany of preemptive measures to the bill. Id. at ¶ 3. Instead of regulating puppies, S.B. 331 now prohibited municipal governments from:

1. Raising the local minimum wage;
2. Setting local standards for fringe benefits or employee scheduling; and
3. Regulating small cell wireless.

The Ohio State Senate passed the bill on strictly party lines, and multiple local governments filed suit. See City of Cincinnati v. State, 2018-Ohio-4498, 121 N.E.3d 892 (1st Dist.); City of Cleveland, 8th Dist. Cuyahoga No 106688, 2019-Ohio-315. The Cuyahoga County Court of Common Pleas and the Hamilton County Court of Common Pleas soon declared the legislation unconstitutional on single-subject grounds, and portions of the bill were eventually repealed. Id.

S.B. 331 is instructive not because of its ultimate (un)constitutionality, but because of what it teaches us about how a non-representative legislature wields the preemption power. When the Ohio Redistricting Commission distorts the link between the General Assembly and Ohio voters through gerrymandering, it stifles an intended check on the legislature: the voters themselves. See Caughey, Tausanovitch, and Warshaw, Partisan Gerrymandering at 455-456. “[B]y biasing the relationship between votes and seats, [gerrymandering] undermines congruence with voters’ preferences, skewing the ideological composition of the legislature and the ideological character of policymaking away from the preferences of the median voter (and thus from a majority of the electorate).” Id. at 456. The General Assembly is then free to transform a bill about puppies into sweeping preemption of local minimum wage, employee scheduling, and small cell wireless regulations—with no meaningful feedback from the urban voters it impacts most. This “new preemption” works to “silence[] the voices of people of color, working-class people, and LGBTQ+ people and their allies.” Bean & Strano, Punching Down: How States are Suppressing Local Democracy, 27, https://d1y8sb8igg2f8e.cloudfront.net/documents/Punching_Down_2019-07-11_205724.pdf (accessed October 22, 2021).

Even though the undemocratic and absurd preemption of S.B. 331 was corrected by the courts, Ohio municipalities were harmed by being forced to direct their limited resources to filing the lawsuits in the first instance. All Ohioans were harmed by General Assembly’s decision to waste its time and taxpayer dollars passing clearly unconstitutional legislation. This type of abuse of the preemption power distracts from the statewide issues—like education or healthcare—that preemption is actually supposed to address. It “nullifies the results of local elections” by ensuring that local policymakers, once seated, have little practical ability to legislate in the areas that voters care about most. Id. The resulting disenfranchisement bleeds through all levels of government, and bodes ill for the future of local political involvement and policy innovation in Ohio.

2. Even when the legislative process is not abused, systemic preemption by a gerrymandered legislature results in the anti-democratic erosion of home rule.

Of course, rarely are exercises of the General Assembly’s preemption power as abusive as the Petland Bill. Preemption can—and should—be used as a tool to resolve intra-state conflict and effect uniform regulatory frameworks for complex issues and industries. But as the partisan composition of the General Assembly skews ever further from that of Ohioans statewide, preemption can be used for a far less legitimate purpose: to undermine and erode municipal home rule.

The sheer scope of policy areas where the Ohio General Assembly has forbidden local law-making is startling. In the last fifteen years, the General Assembly has banned Ohio municipalities from regulating:

- Red light cameras. See Former R.C. 4511.093, 4511.0912, 4511.095.
- Mobile homes. See R.C. 4781.52

- Casinos. See R.C. 3772.26.
- Natural gas hookups. See R.C. 4933.41.
- Hazardous waste disposal. See R.C. 3734.05(E).
- Oil and gas drilling. See R.C. 1509.02.
- Employee wages. See R.C. 4111.02.
- Small cell wireless. See R.C. Chapter 4939.
- Firearm licensing. See R.C. 9.68.
- Firearm transportation and storage by municipal employees. See R.C. 2923.1210.
- Fringe benefits and sick leave, including COVID-19 sick leave. See R.C. 4113.85.
- Public health protection, including COVID-19 quarantine and isolation orders. See R.C. 3701.13(B)

Just last week, the General Assembly evinced its intention to continue this aggressive preemption of local lawmaking. Proposed S.B. 185 would ban local governments, “as part of any statutorily authorized response to any disaster, war, act of terrorism, riot, civil disorder, public health crisis, or emergency,” from “prohibit[ing], regulat[ing], or curtail[ing] the otherwise lawful possession, carrying, display, sale, transportation, transfer, [or] defensive use” of “any deadly weapon.” See Sub. S.B. No. 185, As Passed By Senate, https://search-prod.lis.state.oh.us/solarapi/v1/general_assembly_134/bills/sb185/PS/02/sb185_02_PS?format=pdf (accessed October 22, 2021) (emphasis added). It is difficult to imagine a more direct attack on municipal police power.

The question here is not whether these specific exercises of preemption are constitutional. Some are, and some are not.¹ Rather, in the context of gerrymandering, the question is whether serial preemption of municipal lawmaking can be considered even remotely democratic. Where district maps are drawn specifically to devalue the votes of urban residents, the answer is clearly ‘no.’ The democratic legitimacy of preemption rests on the assumption that the General Assembly will accurately represent statewide interests. The Enacted Maps make a mockery of this premise, and of the more than two million Ohio voters who passed Article XI, Section 6. Should this Court allow the Enacted Maps to stand, the continued erosion of municipal home rule through anti-democratic preemption is inevitable. This outcome respects neither the text nor the spirit of the Ohio Constitution.

CONCLUSION

Ohio municipalities are endowed by Ohio’s constitution with the power “to exercise all powers of local self-government.” This mandate rings hollow when a gerrymandered legislature systemically undermines local government authority. Gerrymandering suppresses the voice of Cincinnati residents twice-over: first when maps are drawn to systemically ‘waste’ their votes, and then again when the gerrymandered legislature preempts local action on the issues closest to voters’ hearts.

In Ohio, bipartisan redistricting is no longer an issue of politics or policy. It is a matter of constitutional law. The City urges this Court to enforce the bipartisan redistricting requirements of Article XI, Section 6 and declare the Enacted Maps unconstitutional.

¹ See, e.g., City of Dayton v. State, 151 Ohio St.3d 168, 2017-Ohio-6909, 87 N.E.3d 176, ¶ 1 (holding former R.C. 4511.093(B)(1), R.C. 4511.0912, and R.C. 4511.095, preempting municipal use of red light cameras, unconstitutional).

Respectfully submitted,

ANDREW W. GARTH (0088905)
CITY SOLICITOR

/s/ Emily Smart Woerner

Emily Smart Woerner (0089349)

Deputy City Solicitor

Shannon Price (100744)

Assistant City Solicitor

801 Plum Street, Room 214

Cincinnati, Ohio 45202

Phone: (513) 352-3309

Fax: (513) 352-1515

emily.woerner@cincinnati-oh.gov

shannon.price@cincinnati-oh.gov

Counsel for Amicus Curiae City of Cincinnati

CERTIFICATE OF SERVICE

This is to certify that a copy of the foregoing has been served upon the following by electronic mail on this 29th day of October 2021:

Freda J. Levenson (0045916)
ACLU of Ohio Foundation, Inc.
4506 Chester Avenue
Cleveland, Ohio 44103
Tel: 614-586-1972 x 125
flevenson@acluohio.org

David J. Carey (0088787)
ACLU of Ohio Foundation, Inc.
1108 City Park Avenue, Suite 203
Columbus, OH 43206
(614) 586-1972 x2004
dcarey@acluohio.org

Alora Thomas (PHV 22010-2021)
Kelsey Miller*
Julie A. Ebenstein (PHV
25423-2021)
American Civil Liberties Union 125
Broad Street
New York, NY 10004
(212) 519-7866
athomas@aclu.org
jebenstein@aclu.org

Robert D. Fram (PHV 25414-2021)
Donald Brown (PHV 25480-2021)
Joshua González (PHV 25424-2021)
Juliana Goldrosen (PHV 25193-2021)
David Denuyl (PHV 25452-2021)
COVINGTON & BURLING LLP
Salesforce Tower
415 Mission Street
San Francisco, CA 94105-2533 (415)
591 6000
rfram@cov.com

ANDREW W. GARTH (0088905)
City Solicitor
Emily Smart Woerner (0089349)
Deputy City Solicitor
Shannon Price (0100744)
Assistant City Solicitor
801 Plum Street, Room 214
Cincinnati, Ohio 45202
Phone: (513) 352-3307
Fax: (513) 352-1515
emily.woerner@cincinnati-oh.gov
shannon.price@cincinnati-oh.gov

Counsel for Amicus Curiae City of Cincinnati

DAVE YOST
OHIO ATTORNEY GENERAL
Michael J. Hendershot (0081842)
Michael A. Walton (0092201)
Bridget C. Coontz (0072919)
Julie M. Pfeiffer (0069762)
30 E. Broad Street Columbus, OH 43215
Tel: (614) 466-2872
Fax: (614) 728-7592
Michael.Hendershot@OhioAttorneyGeneral.gov
Michael.Walton@OhioAGO.gov
bridget.coontz@ohioago.gov
julie.pfeiffer@ohioago.gov

*Counsel for Respondents
Governor Mike DeWine, Secretary of State
Frank LaRose, and Auditor Keith Faber*

W. Stuart Dornette (0002955)
Beth A. Bryan (0082076)
Philip D. Williamson (0097174)
TAFT STETTINIUS & HOLLISTER LLP
425 Walnut St., Suite 1800
Cincinnati, Ohio 45202-3957
T: (513) 381-2838
dornette@taftlaw.com
bryan@taftlaw.com
pwilliamson@taftlaw.com

Anupam Sharma (PHV 25418-2021)
James Hovard (PHV 25420-2021)
Yale Fu (PHV 25419-2021)
COVINGTON & BURLING LLP
3000 El Camino Real
5 Palo Alto Square, 10th Floor
Palo Alto, CA 94306-2112
(650) 632-4700
asharma@cov.com

Madison Arent*
COVINGTON & BURLING LLP
The New York Times Building
620 Eighth Avenue
New York, NY 10018-1405
(212) 841 1000
marent@cov.com

Counsel for Relators
League of Women Voters et al.
Pro Hac Vice Motion Forthcoming*
Pro Hac Vice Motion Pending*

Phillip J. Strach (PHV 25444-2021)
Thomas A. Farr (PHV 25461-2021)
John E. Branch, III (PHV 25460-2021)
Alyssa M. Riggins (PHV 25441-2021)
NELSON MULLINS RILEY & SCARBOROUGH
LLP
4140 Parklake Ave., Suite 200
Raleigh, North Carolina 27612
phil.strach@nelsonmullins.com
tom.farr@nelsonmullins.com
john.branch@nelsonmullins.com
alyssa.riggins@nelsonmullins.com
T: (919) 329-3812

Counsel for Respondents
Senate President Matt Huffman and
House Speaker Robert Cupp

John Gilligan (Ohio Bar No. 0024542)
Diane Menashe (Ohio Bar No. 0070305)
ICE MILLER LLP
250 West Street, Suite 700
Columbus, Ohio 43215
John.Gilligan@icemiller.com
Diane.Menashe@icemiller.com

Counsel for Respondents
Senator Vernon Sykes and
House Minority Leader Emilia Sykes

Erik J. Clark (Ohio Bar No. 0078732)
Ashley Merino (Ohio Bar No. 0096853)
ORGAN LAW LLP
1330 Dublin Road
Columbus, Ohio 43215
T: (614) 481-0900
F: (614) 481-0904
ejclark@organlegal.com
amerino@organlegal.com

Counsel for Respondent
Ohio Redistricting Commission

/s/ Emily Smart Woerner
Emily Smart Woerner (0089349)
Deputy City Solicitor
Counsel for Respondent Cincinnati City Council